NOTES

1. Describing an area for designation

It is important that the information can be clearly conveyed to all interested parties. Usually this is by using words that identify the names of roads or landmarks or geographical features (such as a river) and preferably using commonly known terms or names that can be subsequently located on an official map. The area description needs to identify where the designated area begins and ends, ensuring any possible ambiguity or confusion is avoided.

A clearly marked-up map should be attached to this application.

2. Powers for managing buildings in an emergency

Many of the powers are equivalent to those available under a state of emergency, however they are ring-fenced to building management activity within a designated area. The designation of an area lasts for a longer period than a state of emergency. For more information refer to Fact Sheet: Designating an area for building management.

3. Alternative legislation for managing buildings impacted by an emergency

Alternative regulatory options to manage building damage after an emergency, include the following:

Legislation	Powers
Civil Defence Emergency Management Act 2002 sections 86-88, 91-92	Provides powers to manage buildings including powers of evacuation, inspection, giving direction.
Building Act 2004 sections 121- 130 sections 220 - 221 section 222(1)(b)	Special provisions to manage dangerous, affected, or insanitary buildings; General provisions for carrying out building work on default; Entering buildings to undertake inspections with the consent of the occupier or an order of the District Court.
Local Government Act 2002 section 173	Provides powers of entry to land and buildings and inspection if there is a sudden emergency
